The House has recently undergone a thorough renovation; the rooms are newly and neatly furnished; and still further improvements will be made to render it in all respects worthy of public parronage, and an agreeable home to those who may avail themselves of its privileges.

Intending to devote his own time and attention to the business, and to surround himself with competent assistants, together with faithful, polite and attentive servants, he gives the assurance to the public that no efforts on his part shall be wanting to make the old Phœnix in all respects worthy of its reputation in its palmiest days.

Professions, however, are too easily and too frequently made to be of much value unless accompanied by corresponding acts, and he, therefore, only asks that the public may test the sincerity of his oledges by giving him a call. They will always find him ready to minister to their comforts in the best manner in his power.

SPEECH

On the Federal Relations.

Mr. Chairman I propose to submit my views, briefly, upon the various resolutions reported by the committee on Federal Relations. I propose to do so in that calm, dignified, and independent manner becoming the Representative of a free people. Neither will my purpose be to criticise the views or opinions of gentlemen who have preceded me in this discussion, so much as to define my own opinions; neither will I go back into the history of the past. for the purpose of framing indictments against the rebels for their conduct, or the President and Congress of the United States, against their masters, and to turn them be necessary to a correct understanding of not only the disloyal, who are in rebellion the history of the rebellion, and the man-agement of the war on the part of those in agement of the war on the part of those in authority. That the purposes of the war on who have been coerced into obedience to the the part of the Federal Government, at the authority of a de facto Government, from commencement of hostilities, was to restore whose tyranny and oppression the President the Constitution and the Union, with all the has no power, even had he the will, to prothe Constitution and the Union, with al' the has no power, even had he the will, to prorights of the several States unimpaired, is elear, if we take as an exposition of that ity in this course of policy intention the inaugural address of the President of the United States, and the resolution of the United States, and the resolution of this Assembly by arguing a proposition of the proposition of t authority he had not the inclination to exfor the purpose of maintaining the Constitution with all its dignity unimpaired, and for the purpose, as then avowed, of defend- them back in obedience to the Constitution first battle of Manassa, which proved so disastrous to our arms; then it was thought necessary, in order that there should be no misunderstanding among the American people, as to the object and purposes of the war, that Congress should declare, in more speci fic and direct terms, the purposes for which the war was to be waged. The country had become distrustful and alarmed as to what policy the President intended to pursue; and in order that the public mind might be satisfied and fully advised, our own venerable and distinguished statesman, Mr. Crit tenden, fully representing the will and wishes of the people of this State, introduced into the Congress of the United States, reso lutions, in which they say: "That this war is not waged, on our part, in any spirit of oppression, nor purpose of overthrowing or interfering with the rights or established institutions of the States, but to defend and maintain the supremacy of the Constitution, and to preserve the Union, with all the dignity and rights of the several States unim paired, and that as soon as these objects are accomplished, the war ought to cease.

Such, Mr. Chairman, was the resolution of Congress, passed at a time when the capital of the country was endangered and threatened by the invasion of the Confederate forces, and at a time when it was necessary that the people should be fully advised as to the objects and purposes of a war in which they were called upon to engage, these resolutions were approved by the President, and under these solemn and patriotic declarations thus made, the American people rallied, with a zeal and alacrity unparalelled in the history of the world, to the Adams said : defence of the Union and the flag of their country, and from seventy-five thousand the armies of the Union were increased to more lion would soon be crushed, the Constitution and laws enforced, and the Union restored. Mr. Chairman, has the Administration and Congress kept faith with the people? have they, and are they now, standing by the and kindly sympathies. And far better pledges and promises then solemnly made. that this war was not waged on their part for any purpose of subjugation, or for the purpose of overthrowing the rights of the States, or the institutions of the States, let the recent policy of the Administration and the acts of Congress answer these questions. For what purpose is the war now being waged? What is the programme of the party now in power? Is it to restore the Union and the Constitution of our fathers, which secured life, liberty, property and conscience? Is it to preserve the Union "with all the dignity and rights of the several States unimpaired?" These, Mr. Chairman, are grave questions, ques tions in which not only is Kentucky interested, but they are questions in which the friends of liberty, constitutional law, and free Governments, in every part of the American continent, and throughout the civilized world, are interested; and to these questions I now propose to address myself. however, I proceed to investigate these grave questions, permit me to say that I have ever been, and I am now, loval to the Govern ment established by our fathers; and when I say loyal to the Government, I mean the Constitution and the laws passed in obedience to that Constitution. What constitutes the Union? It is the Constitution. Strike down the Constitution and you destroy the against their will, been coerced into obedi Union; Hence I am no votary at the shrine of party. And I can draw no other conclusion from he arguments of those who speak of a con lict between the Government and slavery han that they recognize Mr. Lincoln, and not the Constitution, as the Government. If such are not their conclusions their argunents undoubtedly lead to such inferences, and to them I leave the task of explanation I, sir, am the friend of the negro, and while I nan, and believe that Divine Providence has destined him, for wise purposes, to slavery in the United States, and while I thus elieve that the negro was never created or in ended by God himself to be either, socially or politically, the equal or compeer of the white nan, yet at the same time, had, or could, any olan be devised whereby they could be sent rom the borders of our land, and thereby emove, this cause of contention between he warring sections of our country, and re tore to our people constitutional law and reedom, no gentleman would be more ready han myself to make the sacrafice-if sacafice, it be. But, sir, when we are met by a proclamation from a gentleman, who hap among the bleak and granite hills of New ens to be chief Executive of a free people, who proposes to eradicate a system which has become so interwoven with our instituions and form of Government, as that of slavery, and that too in violation of the Con stitution of the country, the fundamental aw of the land, regardless of consequences hen, sir, as a freeman and a citizen. If, in this dark hour of our history, we cannot consult with the conserva tive people of New York, Pennsylvania, and the great Northwest, with whom, I ask, can we affiliate? They, like us, have suffered from the calamities of the war. They, like us, bave given up many a brave and gallant son to perish in this unnatural war. like us, are weeping and mourning for those who have fallen in battle. They, like us. have suffered in their commerce and trade. They, like us, are interested in the per petuity of the Union, and in the navigation of the Mississippi. They, like us have all to loose, by becoming a border State to a oreign and alien power; and they like us, are from interest, geographical position, habits and association, interested alike in the com-merce of all the States washed by the waters of that great river; the father of waters. And if in this dark hour of trial we deny his equality, either socially, morally, ters. And if in this dark hour of trial we physically, or politically with the white counsel with them for the safety of the republic and our own dearest interest, I know not to whom to appeal. Hence I especially favor the resolution providing for a Mississippi Valley State Consulting Convention.

In conclusion, Mr. Chairman, let me say that while I do not believe that this Government can be held together by force, yet, at the same time, I yield to no man in my devotion to the Union as our fathers gave it to us. It has been my fortune, sir, to have traveled in every State of this Union, except Maine and California, and I can say, with truth, that I have never passed through a State, a city, village, or town, whether Hampshire, or the flowery vales of Florida, omac or the banks of the Father of Waters felt proud to know that I stood among my fellow-citizens, and that I was treading the soil of my own "native land." God that when my children make the same pilgrimage, they, too, may feel the same emotions that I have felt, and like me offer up a prayer for that country, "esto perpetua. love that country for its hallowed recollictions, for its glorious history. I love for the protection it has given me and mine at home, and the respect it has secured to us abroad. Our nstitutions have, heretofore, been the ad miration of the world, and the down-trodden and oppressed of every land has been casting his eye and heart upon no other banner than the proud one which floated from the capital of the country of Washington. If, n this mad hour, we let this country go own, in this horrible struggle of brother with brother, we will only regain our liberties when "the sun shall slumber in the cloud, forgetful of the voice of the morning; and believing that this Government can only be sustained by peaceful means, and by the virtue and patriotism of the people, I shall, by every humble means in my power, advocate peace, concord, and fraternal good feel ng among my fellow-citizens, as, in my udgment, the only sure way of restoring the unity of the States and a permanent form of free Government.

Union County Convention !!

We are requested to state that a county convention of the Union men of the county of Franklin will be held at the Court House, in Frankfort, on Monday, March 16th, appoint delegates to the Union Convention, to be held in the city of Louisville, on the 18th of March, to select candidates for State officers to be elected at the next August election.

This is a matter of vital importance to all the Union citizens of this county, and of the whole State. All the Union men of each precinct in the county are earnestly requested to attend this county convention.

W. P. D. BUSH.

THE REPRESENTATIVE FROM HANCOCK.

We have been informed by gentlemen who were present in the House of Representatives, that the gentleman whose name heads this article, took occasion, in the debate upon the report of the committee on Federal Relations, to denounce, in pretty round terms, the course pursued by this paper in relation to its denunciation of rebels and rebel sympathisers. Well, all we have to say in reply is, that we did not expect commendation from the lips of one whom we believe to be so deeply dyed a rebel as W. P. D. Bush is. In no instance, so far as we can recollect, has he ever given a vote, whilst acting in his representative capacity, that tended in the slightest degree, to aid the Government in crushing the rebellion which has been in augurated to destroy it. We did not expect that our course would meet with his approbation; if we had, we should have expected to meet the scorn and contempt of every loyal man in Kentucky.

The Ball at the "Capital."

Night before last the grand ball given by the Heads of the Departments and the members of the Legislature, took place at the "Capital," and was largely attended, notwithstanding the adverse circumstances surrounding the affair.

The spacious ball-room was comfortably filled, and the scene was one of dazzling beauty. The music of Duncan's Quadrille Band accompanied the intoxicating dance, and beautiful forms and bewitching faces floated around the room, bewildering the gazer, and challenging his admiration at every turn. It was, indeed, a scene long to be remembered, and those who took part in him in October last, construing it, as we do, t it will, many years hence, recall it with feelings of unmixed pleasure and sentimental regard.
